

What I Aspire to Be

NDDP conducted career counselling sessions in May and June 2021, with alumni aged 15-18 years. The sessions focused on various career choices that included police officer, banker, doctor, and designer. It followed a systematic approach to guide students in making an informed decision. They gained an understanding about various career opportunities and the available options. The sessions were attended enthusiastically by all the students.

When asked, "What do you want to become and why?", this is what they shared:

"I want to be a POLICE OFFICER to have a respected and powerful job and empower the nation by preventing crimes." – Garima

"Becoming a POLICE OFFICER is my dream and I want to help people by stopping heinous crimes and violence." – Rani

"I want to know more about human beings and help people by becoming a DOCTOR and treating them." – Vidya Laxmi

"I want to be a DOCTOR to save lives and fulfil my father's dream." – Fiza

"I feel BANKING is a secured and safe job, especially for girls. Also, I am inspired by the hard work that bankers do." - Sasmita

"I like to learn and work with money management, and I feel the BANKING sector is apt for me." - Riya

"I love mathematics and numbers and BANKING includes all of this while providing a good salary. That's why I aim to work in banking." – Anuradha

"I love to draw and to turn my passion into a career, I aim to be a DESIGNER in the future." - Arfi
